Designed to assist in the explicit teaching of the six main steps of the Information Process in high schools, these posters are useful to both teachers and teacher-librarians. They use the main questions outlined in the NSW Department of Education's Information Skills in the School to direct and remind students of the steps they should consider when undertaking research assignments.

Designed for students in stages 3 and 4, these posters are ideal tools for the explicit teaching of reading skills, focusing on pre-reading skills (RS 1), word attack skills (RS 2), and the three levels of comprehension: Here, Hidden, Head (RS 3 - RS 6). They are especially useful for establishing a common approach to teaching these skills across the school.

Do you have an idea for other educational posters?
